Capability Statement

Original Australian artwork for commercial interiors

SYDNEY · 2026

Original Australian artwork, procured like any other supplied item.

Artwork is usually the last line on the schedule and the first to cause a problem, because it is bought differently from everything else in the fit-out. It doesn't have to be.

Ritushka Fine Art is a Sydney studio producing original large-scale abstract landscapes and seascapes for commercial interiors — receptions, boardrooms, client floors, lobbies and executive suites.

The studio supplies against a written quote, a fixed delivery date and a purchase order. Every work arrives with a certificate of authenticity, a condition report, an insurance valuation and a high-resolution image file for your asset register.

Work is made to the interior's palette and to the dimension of the wall, which is generally cheaper than framing three sourced pieces to cover the same span, and considerably faster than importing.

Three reasons this is a capital decision rather than a decorating one.

01

THE SPACE SAYS
SOMETHING BEFORE
ANYONE SPEAKS

A reception is read in the first fifteen seconds of a client visit, and read again by every candidate you interview. Original work signals investment and permanence in a way that reproduction does not, because everyone can tell the difference.

02

IT IS AN ASSET, NOT A
CONSUMABLE

Original artwork is capitalised, valued, insured and retained. It survives a refurbishment, moves to a new tenancy, and is documented for your asset register from day one.

03

AUSTRALIAN, MADE
LOCALLY, DELIVERED TO SCHEDULE

Overseas-sourced artwork commonly runs 18–24 weeks and arrives fixed. A Sydney studio delivers in <8–10>, to your palette, with a named person accountable for the date.
