SYDNEY · 2026

An art package that arrives on the FF&E schedule.

Art is usually specified late, sourced overseas, and lands at 18–24 weeks against a programme that has already moved twice.

Ritushka is a Sydney studio producing original abstract landscape and seascape painting for hotels — lobbies, restaurants, suites, corridors and guestroom programmes.

The studio works two ways. Signature originals for public areas, where one large work has to carry a space. And coordinated series or licensed editions for guestroom counts, where forty rooms need work that is related but not identical, at a per-key cost that survives the budget.

Everything is made to your palette, coordinated to your FF&E dates, and delivered in a single consignment per phase.

Three reasons this route costs less than it appears to.

01

THE LOBBY ONLY NEEDS
ONE PIECE TO WORK

Original work in public areas is what guests photograph and what the property is remembered for. It is a small proportion of the art budget doing most of the brand work.

02

GUESTROOMS NEED
COHERENCE, NOT UNIQUENESS

A coordinated series or a licensed edition gives every room a related work at a per-key cost comparable to imported decorative art — with the difference that it is by a named artist and it is yours alone.

03

LOCAL SUPPLY PROTECTS
THE PROGRAMME

Overseas art runs 18–24 weeks and cannot be changed once shipped. A Sydney studio delivers in <8–10>, absorbs a palette change at week four, and coordinates delivery to your installation window rather than to a container schedule.
